Florida Airspace Optimization IFR High Altitude Preferred Route Supplement

Effective 27 Oct 2005

This supplemental publication describes the IFR High Altitude Route portion of the Florida Airspace Optimization. These routes are for use by both commercial and general aviation aircraft and are designed to increase the efficiency of air traffic flow to and from selected cities in the Florida winter "snowbird" areas. Most of these routes originate in northern cities and terminate in the Florida regions popularly visited during the fall & winter months. Use of the IFR High Altitude Preferred Routes should significantly streamline the traffic flow between these origins and destinations. The following routes are effective October 27 and will be incorporated in the Preferred Route section of the 22 Dec 2005 editions of the Airport/Facility Directories.

The supplement lists IFR High Altitude Preferred Routes between the following city pairs:
