GENERAL AVIATION & SAFETY COUNSELOR AWARDS PROGRAM

The General Aviation Awards Program is a cooperative effort between the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and aviation industry sponsors to annually recognize outstanding individuals in the fields of Avionics, Flight Instruction and Maintenance. In addition, the FAA annually recognizes outstanding individuals serving the national safety program as Aviation Safety Counselors. The awards highlight the important roles these individuals play in promoting aviation safety, education and professionalism. Winners will be locally, regionally and nationally recognized. They will also receive valuable gifts and merchandise provided by sponsors and contributors.

ELIGIBILITY

All candidates must have been actively working within their respective aviation fields for a minimum of five (5) years prior to application / nomination. Candidates must also hold valid FAA airman certificates appropriate to their respective fields. In addition:

- A) Aviation Maintenance Technician candidates must be actively working within the United States under FAR Part 65;
- B) Avionics Technician candidates must be actively working within the United States with an FAA certified Part 145 Repair Station;
- C) Certificated Flight Instructor candidates must be actively working within the United States under FAR Part 61, Part 141 or Part 142;
- D) Aviation Safety Counselor candidates must be actively involved in the Safety Program within the United States.

Candidates will be judged on the basis of sustained superior performance in their respective fields as well as specific contributions and accomplishments.

APPLICATION / NOMINATION PACKAGE

The application / nomination package should include only the required components listed below. Any additional information contained in the package will be disregarded.
